Calculus has been around since the 17-century or before, and people have been making money by writing text books ever since. After three centuries of development, they are now all more or less the same. By all means borrow your friend's copy of Stewart, fourth or fifth or sixth edition..... it makes little difference to anyone other than the publisher and Stewart's estate. A comparison of various common texts can be found at Discussion Sections, Homework & Cheating.

It is departmental policy that discussion sections for this class are mandatory and attendance will be taken. You may miss two sections without penalty, however unless you obtain an A or A^- in the class, your grade will be lowered by one half grade (i.e. B^+ becomes B and so on) for each section you miss past the second.

Homework is done via WebWork which administered through Gauchospace. Don't forget that homework is meant to help you learn the material for the tests, so you're advised to try and do it on your own and without using calculators, since their use will not be permitted on exams. All exams will be closed book. There will be no make up exams.

Homework will be due by 10 p.m. six days after it is assigned. (For example, if homework is set on Tuesday, it is due by 10 p.m. the following Monday). It's a good idea not to leave homework to the last minute because the system will slow down.

There is a zero tolerance policy on cheating and any cheating in any form (for example, if your cell phone is visible during a test) you will be given zero for that exam.

Waiting lists

If you wish to enroll for this class but have not yet been able to do so, you need to go to GOLD and sign up on the electronic waiting list. You should attend sections (be sure to sign the Crashers' list), and do the homework (you will need to be added as a guest user in Gauchospace).
